

Are you a Care Provider in the Adult Social Care Sector?

Would you like to share your experiences and views of pay and rewards in your sector?

Are you able to offer pay and rewards that attract care workers and encourage them to stay in the sector?

Our research project is investigating how pay varies in the sector and we would value your insights and experiences of what types of pay and reward practices are valued by care workers.

This research, funded by the National Institute for Health and Care Research and sponsored by the Department of Health and Social Care, wants to hear from providers about the realities and barriers involved when trying to improve pay and rewards for care workers. Your involvement will give us important evidence and real world examples that can be used to help inform future policy.

We would be happy to give you more information before you make a decision on whether or not to be involved. Please be assured that any information that you provide will kept both confidential and anonymous and no one who participates will be identified.

We would love to hear from you. For more information please email Dr Gail Hebson: g.hebson@mmu.ac.uk and Dr Katie Willocks: k.willocks@mmu.ac.uk
